FOREWORD

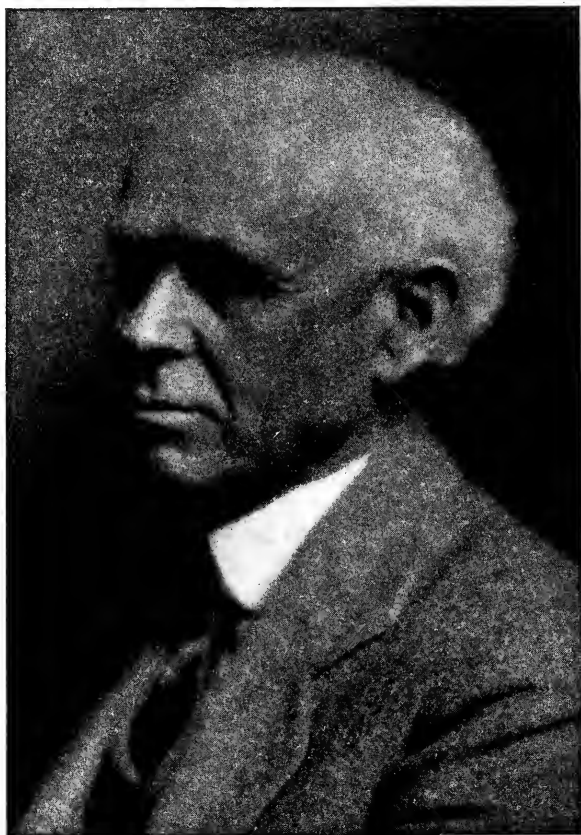

Deep currents of life flow through the lines of Homer's "Odyssey," deep longings and struggles. The poem has too broad a sweep to be treated as a mere allegory on college life: its spirit is universal, yet its episodes may have their humble parallels in every life.

Odysseus, the central figure, is indeed a demi-god, but he is forced to war against hostile gods themselves, and his halting, ill-favored voyage becomes a very real human trial, and an embodiment of patient courage. "With staggering sails aslant," his bark drives through the storms, her captain defying the elements and the capricious deities. Again, the hero experiences the zest of athletic contests, and enjoys the glad society of the feast in the halls of Alcinous. Then, too, there are days and years of waiting and disappointment, and partings from friends who pass "Oh, far away, over the weltering tide."

Calypso and Circe, with love and charms, tempted Odysseus to forego his quest and live in forgetful ease: but always from his soul came the stronger voice, " . . . in spite of all, do I long to win my home once more!"

The wise, full-blooded spirit of Odysseus, its purpose and its freedom from the world's slow weight are most significant now, when we review the way we have come this year, and the changes which college life have wrought in us. For Odysseus was able to look back without regrets, to face the unknown ahead and cry,

"Push off and smite the soundings furrows, for my purpose holds
To sail beyond the sunset and the baths
Of all the western stars until I die.
It may be that the gulfs will wash us down:
It may be we shall touch the Happy Isles,
And see the great Achilles whom we knew.
Tho' much is taken, much abides, and though
We are not now the strength which in old days
Moved earth and heaven, that which we are, we are,
One equal temper of heroic hearts,
Made weak by time and fate, but strong in will.
To strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield."

FRED C. SEARS

DEDICATION

Fred Coleman Sears was born May 11, 1866, in Lexington, Mass., of a sea-faring family. While he was yet quite young, his parents took him to their new home on the plains of Kansas, a territory at that time populated mainly by coyotes, jack-rabbits, buffalo, and Indians. Here he spent his boyhood, on the far American frontier, with all its romantic experiences. Soon after graduating from the Kansas State Agricultural College in 1892, he went to Nova Scotia where for ten years he was engaged in teaching and extension work, mainly in pomological lines. This residence of a decade under the British flag also made its deep impression on him. In 1907, he transferred his activities to Massachusetts, serving here since then as Professor of Pomology at M.S.C. During all of this period he has kept in notably close contact with the fruit growers of New England, by whom he is held in high esteem.

Several years ago he fell in with Sir Wilfred Grenfell, noted doctor and missionary to Labrador, and for seven successive summers he has gone to Labrador or its neighborhood, assisting in the work of the Grenfell Mission.

Checking over this brief chronology, it is easy to see that, beginning with a sea-going background, teaching for ten years in a foreign land, serving as college professor for more than a quarter of a century in New England, and joining in a highly effective missionary enterprise in Labrador, Fred Sears has led an active and varied life. He has been constantly in touch with rugged realities and major enterprises. If he is sometimes impatient with pious generalities, with theoretical palaver, with mere talk, and if he looks rather for prompt and practical action, the reason stands revealed.

In 1897, Mr. Sears married his college classmate, Ruth Stokes, who moved forward to the next world in 1924. Twin daughters, born in 1907, constitute his remaining family.

In Amherst, Mr. Sears is known as an active and useful citizen of the community, a leader in his church, in the Masonic fraternity and in other useful movements. At the State College, he is recognized as an outstanding man in his professional field, but he bears an equally high reputation for helpful activities in many different directions. Humanly speaking—very humanly—he is one of the landmarks of the campus.

—Frank A. Waugh.

“UNCLE FREDDIE”

One great trouble among the fishermen of North Newfoundland and Labrador used to be the alarming amount of illness disability due to food deficiency diseases. We surgeons recognized early that only half the task before us was the treatment of patients who came to our hospitals suffering from beri-beri, scurvy, rickets, and tuberculosis—that “melancholy brood.” The real challenge was to love our neighbors in the more difficult but more common-sense way of preventing their ever having to contract these ailments.

Consequently, when, many years ago, Professor Sears offered to come North each summer as a volunteer worker in the Grenfell Association, and to see what our ground and climate were capable of producing in the way of vegetables and small fruits, and also to teach our fishermen how to cultivate little gardens of their own, we hailed him as just the colleague we needed.

Since then, Professor Sears has been of great service to our cause. One of the early discoverers of Labrador reported it as "a lande fitte only for wild beastes, with not a cartelod of earth on it." Yet today, thanks largely to the impetus and teaching of Professor Sears, all along the coast little gardens are "flourishing like the green bay tree."

Horticulture, however, is only one of the talents of this beloved physician to the plants. He has the true flair for photography; and our north country has furnished him fields fertile not only for potatoes, but for photography as well. His camera has been quite as useful to our work as his spade. Through the medium of his beautiful pictures, many friends on both sides of the Atlantic have been given a true idea of the country and the people, and not a few have come to visit us as a result.

On the Labrador, a person who has attained the dignity of gray hair, and who is beloved and respected, is promoted to the title of "Uncle." Since Professor Sears answers to all of those qualifications, he is universally known amongst us as "Uncle Freddie." As one of our volunteers has phrased it:

"'Oh, would some power the giftie gi'e us,
To see ourselves as ithers see us,'
Quoth Robert Burns. But on the Coast
We have a system that we boast will do the trick—
Just hold it steady—
Be photographed by Uncle Freddie."

So it is with the greatest pleasure that we, from the humblest fisherman to the Chairman of our Board of Directors, add our sincere testimony of gratitude and affection to Professor Sears—of Amherst and Labrador.

—Sir Wilfred Grenfell.

KENYON L. BUTTERFIELD

IN MEMORIAM

In 1906 the youthful president of Rhode Island State was appointed president of our college. In 1925 he resigned to become president of Michigan State College—his alma mater. These eighteen years—the best of his life—he spent with us and for us.

Under Goodell the college had begun its renaissance. Butterfield's young energy and enthusiasm were immediately turned to the organization of the new forces. The entrance requirements and courses of study were thoroughly revised, the teaching force reorganized and augmented, the extension service initiated, the short courses much improved and an extensive building program projected. Memoranda flew from the president to the worker on the campus in unbelievable volume. He was ambitious for the college and everyone connected with it. Often he quoted Clarke's farewell admonition to the Japanese students at Sapporo—"Boys, be ambitious!"

Before he came to us he was an authority on rural life in America. Later he was to study at first hand the rural life of peoples in Europe, Asia and Africa. Finally he was to come back to Amherst—his real home—to round out his life-work writing his last book on country life. He was not destined to complete it. November 25, 1935, he passed on to his long rest

*"Like one who wraps the drapery of his couch
About him, and lies down to pleasant dreams."*

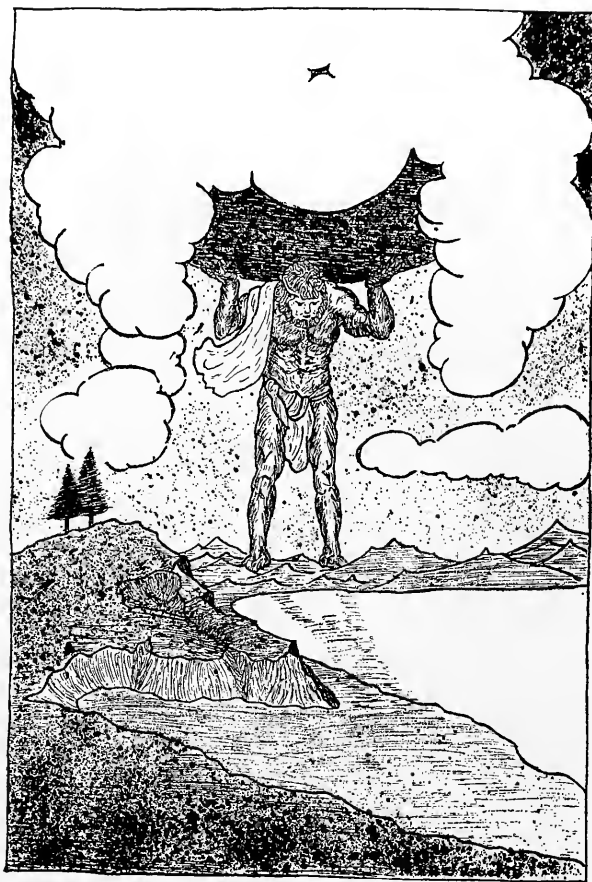

—A. Anderson MacKimmie.

IN MEMORIAM

Miss Lorian P. Jefferson, who passed away in the Christmas season of 1935. She had served since 1917 in the Department of Economics, History, and Sociology.

Wayne J. Lowry, who passed away in the springtime of 1935. He was born in 1906, and had served since 1929 as Instructor in Horticulture.

"Out of the harbor gone, and far across the sea, Unto the world's last bourne, where day is breaking."

George A. Marston, M. S., Instructor in Mathematics

Born 1908. B. Sc., Worcester Polytechnic Institute, 1930. M. S., University of Iowa, 1933. Research Assistant, University of Iowa, 1932-33. Instructor in Mathematics, M. S. C., 1933-. Junior Member of American Society of Civil Engineers. Sigma Chi, Lambda Chi Alpha.

Walter McKinley Miller, Ph. D., Assistant Professor of Mathematics

Born 1896. Ph. B., Lafayette, 1918. M. A., Penn State College, 1923. Ph. D., University of Illinois, 1927. Graduate Work, Cornell, 1931. Instructor, Penn State College, 1920-23. Assistant, University of Illinois, 1924-27. Assistant Professor at Bowdoin, 1927-29. Assistant Professor, Marquette University, 1929-31. Assistant Professor of Mathematics, 1931-35. Assistant Professor of Mathematics, M. S. C., 1935-. Member, American Mathematical Association, American Association of University Professors. Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Kappa Phi, Sigma Xi.

Rudolph O. Monosmith, B. L. A., Instructor in Horticulture

Born 1909. B. S., Mississippi State College, 1929. B. L. A., M. S. C., 1933. Instructor in Horticulture, Mississippi State College, 1929-30. Assistant Professor, 1930-31. Instructor in Horticulture, M. S. C., 1935-.

Frank C. Moore, A. B., Associate Professor of Mathematics

A. B., Dartmouth College, 1902. Graduate Student at Dartmouth College, 1903. Graduate Student at Columbia University, 1916. Instructor in Mathematics, Dartmouth College, 1906-09. Assistant Professor, University of New Hampshire, 1909-17. Assistant Professor of Mathematics, M. S. C., 1918-33. Associate Professor of Mathematics, M. S. C., 1933-. Member of the Mathematical Association of America. Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Chi Phi, Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Kappa Phi.

Miriam Morse, B. Sc., M. Sc., Instructor in Zoology

B. Sc., St. Lawrence University, 1927. High School Teacher, 1927-28. Graduate Assistant in Entomology, M. S. C., 1928-30. M. Sc., M. S. C., 1930. Technical Assistant in Entomology and Zoology, 1930-32. Instructor in Zoology, M. S. C., 1932-. Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Kappa Phi.

Claude C. Neet, Ph. D., Instructor in Education

Born 1905. B. A., University of California at Los Angeles, 1930. M. A., Clark University, 1932. Ph. D., Clark University, 1935. Instructor in Psychology, 1934-35. Lecturer, Teachers' Institute, Rhode Island, September, 1935. Special Psychologist, New Jersey State Hospital, 1931. Instructor in Psychology, M. S. C., 1935-. Associate Member, American Psychological Association.

John B. Newlon, Instructor in Agricultural Engineering

Born 1834. Instructor in Forge Work, M. S. C., 1919. Special Student at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, 1921. Instructor in Agricultural Engineering, 1921-.

A. Vincent Osmun, M. S., Professor of Botany and Head of the Department

Born 1880. B. Agr., Connecticut State College, 1900. Assistant, Storrs Agricultural Experiment Station, 1900-02. B. Sc., M. S. C., and Boston University, 1903. M. Sc., M. S. C., 1905. Assistant in Botany, M. S. C., 1903-05. Instructor in Botany, M. S. C., 1905-07. Assistant Professor in Botany, M. S. C., 1907-14. Associate Professor in Botany, M. S. C., 1914-16. Acting Professor in the Department of Botany, M. S. C., and Experiment Station, 1914-16. Professor of Botany and Head of the Department, M. S. C., 1916-. Q. T. V., Phi Kappa Phi.

Ranson C. Packard, M. S., Vocational Instructor in Bacteriology

Born 1886. B. S. A., University of Toronto, 1911. M. S., M. S. C., 1932. Chief Inspector, Dairy Division, City of Toronto, 1912. Assistant Soil Bacteriologist, North Carolina State College, 1913. Instructor in Bacteriology, 1927-.

Ernest Milford Parrott, M. S., Instructor in Chemistry

Born 1903. B. S., Union University, Jackson, Tenn., 1927. M. S., M. S. C., 1932. Instructor in Chemistry, M. S. C., 1931-. Associate Member of Division of Chemical Education, American Chemical Society. Science Club. Gamma Sigma Epsilon, Phi Kappa Phi.

Clarence H. Parsons, M. S.,

Assistant Professor of Animal Husbandry and Superintendent of Farm

Born 1904. B. Sc., M. S. C., 1927. Manager of Farm, 1927-28. Instructor in Animal Husbandry, M. S. C., 1928-29. Assistant Professor of Animal Husbandry and Superintendent of College Farm, 1931-. M. S., M. S. C., 1933. Member, American Society of Animal Production. Q. T. V.

Charles A. Peters, Ph. D., Professor of Inorganic and Soil Chemistry

Born 1875. B. Sc., M. S. C., 1897. B. Sc., Boston University, 1897. Assistant in Chemistry, M. S. C., 1897-98. Graduate Student in Chemistry, Yale University, 1899-1901. Ph. D., Yale University, 1901. Professor of Chemistry and Head of the Department, University of Idaho, 1901-09. Student at University of Berlin, 1908-10. Exchange Teacher, Friedrichs Werdersche Oberrealschule, 1909-11. Graduate Student, Yale University, 1910-11. Assistant Professor of Inorganic and Soil Chemistry, M. S. C., 1911-12. Associate Professor of Inorganic and Soil Chemistry, M. S. C., 1912-16. Professor of Inorganic and Soil Chemistry, M. S. C., 1916-. Alpha Sigma Phi, Sigma Xi, Phi Kappa Phi.

Ralph W. Phillips, M. A., Instructor in Animal Husbandry

Born 1909. B. S., Berea College, 1930. M. A., University of Missouri, 1931. Research Assistant in Animal Husbandry, University of Missouri, 1930-33. Instructor in Animal Husbandry, M. S. C., 1933-. Sigma Xi, Gamma Sigma Delta, Gamma Alpha Graduate Scientific Fraternity. Ph. D., University of Missouri, 1934.

Wallace F. Powers, Ph. D., Professor of Physics and Head of the Department

A. B., Clark University, 1910. A. M., Clark University, 1911. Associate Professor of Mathematics and Physics, University of Richmond, 1914-16. Instructor in Physics, Simmons College, 1916-17. Instructor in Physics, New York University, 1917-20. Assistant Professor in Physics, Wesleyan University, 1920-25. Professor of Physics and Head of Department, M. S. C., 1925-.

Walter E. Prince, A. M., Professor of English

Born 1881. Ph. B., Brown University, 1904. A. M., Brown University, 1905. Instructor in English, University of Maine, 1905-12. Instructor in English, M. S. C., 1912-15. Assistant of Professor, English and Public Speaking, 1915-28. Associate Professor of English, 1928-33. Professor of English, 1933-. Sphinx, Phi Kappa Phi. Shakespearean Association of America, Inc.

George F. Pushee, Instructor in Agricultural Engineering

1. C. S., 1906. Teachers' Training Class, Springfield, 1914-15. Assistant Foreman and Millwright, Mt. Tom Sulfide Pulp Mill, 1915-16. Instructor in Agricultural Engineering, M. S. C., 1916-. Counselor Camp Medomak, Washington, Maine, Summers, 1927-33.

Ernest J. Radcliffe, M. D., Professor of Hygiene and Student Health Officer

Born 1898. M. B., University of Toronto, 1923. M. D., University of Toronto, 1929. Private and Clinic Practice. Canadian Field Artillery, 1916-19. Professor of Hygiene and Student Health Officer, M. S. C., 1930-. Massachusetts Medical Society, American Medical Association.

Nathan Rakieten, Ph. D., Instructor in Bacteriology and Physiology

Born 1908. B. S., Wesleyan, 1929. Ph. D., Yale University, 1933. Instructor in Bacteriology and Physiology, M. S. C., 1934-.

Frank Prentice Rand, A. M., Professor of English and Head of the Department of Languages and Literature

THE ASSOCIATE ALUMNI

On July 15, 1874, the first meeting of the Associate Alumni was held on the campus in the old Botanic Museum, now the Physics Laboratory.

A constitution was adopted which declared that the object of the Association would be to "promote, in every proper way, the interests of the College, to foster among the graduates a sentiment of mutual regard, and to promote and strengthen their attachment to their Alma Mater."

Even with the best of intentions, the average Alumnus can do but little for the College as an individual. But as a strong, well-organized body of many Alumni, the Associate Alumni can do, and since 1874 has done, much for the best interests of Massachusetts State.

For instance, Memorial Hall, Alumni Field, the Physical Education Building, all owe their inception to alumni interest and their being to alumni organization.

The Associate Alumni published the splendid history, "Yesterdays at Massachusetts State College," and engaged Professor Frank Prentice Rand to write the book.

In the Alumni Office are maintained complete address records of over 5,000 graduates and former students; alumni biographic records; a geographic index listing alumni living all over the globe; a file which groups the occupations of Alumni within seven great divisions, such as industry, business, the professions. These records are the basis of the Alumni Directories, of which a new one was published in 1935.

The Alumni Office sponsors and organizes meetings of Alumni throughout the United States, and fosters and assists in the plans for class reunions on the campus at commencement. Class secretaries, class reunion committees, local alumni club officers, constantly call upon the office for help in preparing, duplicating, addressing and mailing letters and announcements of all kinds.

The Alumni Bulletin is an illustrated magazine sent ten times each year to all members of the Associate Alumni. The Bulletin prints news and notes of alumni activity and of developments on the campus. It keeps its readers close to and interested in each other and the College.

In short—since 1874—the organization of graduates of the College has continued and grown as a strong, vital, interested group—until it has been said, "The Associate Alumni is and can be the most important single factor affecting the policy and future of the College."

LANDMARKS

*"Once more the year has swung full circle;
The Autumn and the Winter gone their way,
And now Orion stands his last brief watch upon the sunset hills,
Till, from the east, rolls up the summer sky."*

"On Corpus Christi Day"

Once more the Roister Doisters have undertaken a novel commencement production—this time a unique presentation of four episodes selected from the great cycles of medieval trade-guild plays, and given external unity and coherence by the appropriate title "On Corpus Christi Day."

And once more, under the able and ingenious direction of Professor Rand, the real Deus Ex Machina, they have achieved a memorable success. As an old Roister Doister, whose last undergraduate dramatic efforts were similarly involved in a transformed Grinnell Arena, and who, on that account, keenly remembers the many difficulties challenging successful production there, I am glad to have this opportunity of publicly congratulating the actors, the production staff, the director, and all others who cooperated.

In the past, Professor Rand has more than once achieved notable results by his unconventional interpretations of Shakespeare's plays. This year he has pushed back to a dramatic form ancestral to those developed by Shakespeare.

In his modernization of the archaic texts of the four episodes selected for presentation, Professor Rand has commendably contrived, on the whole, to preserve the simple, at times monotonously insistent, hard jog-trot beat of the old verse.

For the most part, too, we in the audience were successfully encouraged to live the illusion that we were back in medieval times,—witnesses of dramatic pieces that were the outcome of an incongruous, often naïf, combination of liturgical seriousness and sublimity with secular mirth and vulgar, physical horseplay.

We were beguiled into genuine dramatic illusion—within the narrow confines of a wagon-stage that was made to serve as a whole cosmos—Earth, Heaven, and Hell—the great stage of the vast drama of the Creation, Fall, and Redemption of Man.

We lost ourselves in what was being said and done—whether it was the augustly impressive spectacle of "The Creation," or the rollicking domestic farce of the essentially grave "The Flood," or the mixture of bitter social satire, rough horseplay, and mystical elevation of the "Nativity," or the moving dramatization of the "Harrowing of Hell" with its awe-inspiring, triumphantly sublime conclusion.

It is also to the great credit of the production as a whole that one cannot easily select individual players for special praise. One rather feels like praising the whole cast, which was large (including two very well-behaved horses, and a little lamb that knew just when to bleat!).

With such a wealth of acting material as was revealed in "On Corpus Christi Day," the Roister Doisters, with Edward V. Law as their head, have good reason to look forward to even greater successes in the future than they have enjoyed in the past.

—Maxwell H. Goldberg

Sunday Vespers

The abolishing of compulsory Sunday Chapel and the substituting for it of a voluntary vesper service is one of the important changes which have been made on the campus within the past year. The Sunday Chapels were poorly attended and the change has been made with the idea in mind to make the vesper services not only popular but inspiring. Far from being an attempt to minimize the importance of Sunday Chapel the change is made to enhance chapel service as a service for worship. The selection of speakers for these services has been carefully made so that the topics will cover a wide range of religious experience.

The Scientific Conference

On April 13, 1935, the Sixth Annual Student Scientific Conference was held on the Massachusetts State College campus. The ten Connecticut Valley Colleges—Amherst, Connecticut College for Women, Connecticut State College, Dartmouth, Mount Holyoke, Springfield, Smith, Wesleyan, Williams, and Massachusetts State College—were the participants; and the results of original research in astronomy, bacteriology, physiology, botany, geology, mathematics, physics, psychology, zoology, and home economics were presented. These student projects are undertaken each year for the purpose of exchanging ideas and knowledge of scientific value. The conference as a whole is modeled after the conferences of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. A few of the papers given by Massachusetts State College students included: "The Bacteriophage—the Enemy of Bacteria, the Friend of Man" presented by Dr. Rakieten; "An Experimental Investigation of the Effect of Odor on Reaction Time" by Barnett Golub, '35, and "A Biometric Estimation of Positive Calcium Ions by the Use of the Extirpated Heart" by Henry Riseman, '35. The members of the committee in charge of the conference were Charles Daniels, chairman; George R. Pease, in charge of finance; Dante Zucker, secretary; John C. Eldridge, programs; Louis Lebeshevsky, publicity; Marion Harris, luncheon arrangements; and Janet C. Sargent, registration. To these students must go a great share of the credit for a very successful and worthwhile conference.

The Band

The single outstanding example of successful participation in academic activities during the past year, and probably for several years to come, was Samuel Snow's campaign for a reorganized, completely uniformed Massachusetts State College Band. Working with the student senate, Snow raised a thousand dollars, to which the various organizations on campus contributed. The maroon and white uniforms are a distinct addition to the appearance of the band. Mr. Snow's work did not end with the uniforming of the band, however; he effected a reorganization of the band also, and, largely through his own engaging enthusiasm, he enlisted the interest of his fellow-students so effectively that the membership of the organization jumped from fourteen to thirty-six members. The services of a professional band leader, Mr. Charles B. Farnum, were acquired, and the band has shown unmistakably the improvement his instructions have effected. The band played at the home football games, the dedication of the new library in November, the Insignia Convocation, and as a part of the combined musical clubs' concert. The band's first public appearance in uniform was at the spring concert which was held last May. It is scarcely too much to say that it is impossible to overestimate the part that Samuel Snow played in this project. Out of his own industry and enthusiasm he has evolved an organization of which we all may be proud.

The Music Collection

Last spring, the Carnegie Corporation of New York made a grant of music study material to the college. This was the third award of such material to colleges in this state—Amherst and Wheaton having benefited by previous grants. The material greatly enhances the courses in music appreciation which are given here on our campus and provides an added cultural opportunity which may be enjoyed by everyone. The grant includes a Capehart electric phonograph; scores; and over eight hundred records, many of which are irreplaceable, and embrace the whole field of vocal, choral, and instrumental combinations from all nations. The material is housed in the new Goodell Library.

The Horse Show

The fourteenth annual Horse Show was held on the equitation field on Saturday, June 7, 1935, before nearly fifteen hundred enthusiastic spectators. One hundred and fourteen entries made the show one of the most successful ever held at the college. The awards in the various classes were made as follows:

To Cadet Richard Kennett, the award to the junior cadet for the most skill in riding.

To Cadet Francis Lord, the Stowell Cup, for the most improvement in riding.

To Cadet Edward V. Law, the trophy to the junior showing the greatest excellence with rifle and pistol.

To Miss Janet Sargent, the Thompson Co-ed Riding Trophy. Misses Winsor, Martin, Lowry were second, third, and fourth respectively, in this class.

To Miss Elizabeth Harrington and Cadet James Moran, the Gage Trophy in the student division of saddle horse pairs. Miss Smith and Cadet Lillie were second; Miss Martin and Cadet Wihry, third; Miss Sargent and Cadet Malloch, fourth.

To Cadet James Moran, the award in the Open Jumping for Senior Cadets. Cadets Brown, Wihry, and Landis were second, third, and fourth respectively.

Major Herbert E. Watkins and Captain Dwight T. Hughes won the blue ribbons in the Open Hunter and the Open Jumping Classes, respectively.

Many out-of-town entries in the open classes served to increase the interest in this part of the program. Major Francis C. V. Crowley of Boston officiated in the open classes and Colonel Romeyn judged the student classes. The show was under the management of Major Watkins.

The Horticultural Show

In November of this year, the 27th Annual Horticultural Show was viewed by a new record crowd of 14,486 people. The show featured a decidedly rural motive, centered around an old Greenwich Village house at the end of a winding country lane, passing through a genuine expression of New England countryside. The whole arrangement of the show was in keeping with this terminal feature. Among the student exhibits were Garden Wall, designed by Adin A. Hixon '36, and Garden Terminus by David Taylor '36. The Holyoke-Northampton Association of Florists again exhibited masses of chrysanthemums, roses, and gardenias. In the gallery, Steve Hamilton exhibited several pictures which he had painted at Monhegan Island in Maine.

The Goodell Library

The dedication of the Goodell Library took place on November 7, 1935. A special morning convocation was arranged with Mr. Joseph L. Hills of the class of '81 addressed the assembly on "Goodell—I Knew Him." Later, Mr. Clarence E. Sherman of Providence, Rhode Island, discussed "The College Man Looks at Books and Libraries." In the afternoon, the program consisted of a series of speeches: John L. McConchie, President of the Student Senate, on "What This Means to the Student"; Mr. Charles S. Plumb '82, Professor Emeritus of Ohio State University, on "Goodell Library, An Appropriate Name"; Mr. Clarence E. Sherman on "Expansion in Three Dimensions"; and Mr. Philip F. Whitmore '15, Chairman of the Trustee Committee on Buildings and Grounds, spoke on "A Real Want Supplied." The response was given by Mr. Basil B. Wood, the Librarian of the College.

"Mel" Taube

This spring we say farewell to one of the outstanding personalities on our campus. Melvin Taube, head coach of football, basketball, and baseball, is leaving to take a position as assistant coach at his Alma Mater, Purdue University. It is with considerable regret that we see "Mel" go, for we shall miss him not only for the successful athletic record which he has given us but also for the gentlemanly qualities which have characterized his stay with us. We realize, however, that this departure means another step upward for "Mel," and for that reason we can say that we approve of and congratulate him on his new position. The entire college, we know, wishes him the best of luck. Our loss is Purdue's gain!

Kenyon L. Butterfield

Kenyon Butterfield and I were friends for almost fifty years. I remember him first as a boy in college—a slim, tall boy, erect, with unusually clear and candid eyes. He had come up from a Michigan farm and knew how to use the discipline of stern necessity to sharpen all his powers. He was more than an excellent student: there was in him the undefinable something which boys recognize even more quickly than their elders—a sense of steady inner purpose, a character which made him an outstanding leader in the activities of his class and his college. I remember well the prophetic remark of one of the old college professors, made before Butterfield had even reached his junior year: "That boy has stuff in him to make a college president."

I remember him later as a student at the University of Michigan when the inner purpose, which we had felt so strongly, had become fixed in him. He knew at twenty-two or three what many men never learn at all; he knew what he wanted to do with his life. It seems to me, as I think back, that I never knew a life more completely centered.

It was centered, as any great life must be, in an objective outside itself. In this sense it was deeply, truly, fundamentally religious. And his devotion was to a cause not only worthy in itself, but far more clearly thought out than most causes ever are. Butterfield not only felt deeply: he could think luminously.

I remember long talks with my friend—how many, many through the years I remember—and how in the course of them I could see his eyes grow reflective and I knew that he was seeking in our discussion some application to his own deep, I might almost say, passionate, interest in his own purpose.

The purpose, as set forth in one of his books, was the development of an "adequate civilization for those who till the soil and live in rural environment."

He had a fine old English word he often used, "yeoman," to express his ideal of the free farmer of his vision. A "yeomanry," living the good life on the land, organized as a sound democracy, he believed to be the basis of a vigorous and healthy civilization.

How he strove mightily all his life to realize that ideal! I remember him, a busy leader in the Grange movement and editor of its official journal; I remember him working valiantly in farmers' institutes and in country churches—anything, everything, that would help to make country life more significant, more vigorous, more beautiful. And never satisfied—never satisfied! For his vision always, throughout his life, far exceeded, as it inspired, his daily tasks. He was one who loved the mountain-top, and the far view. How vividly I have been recalling, these days since he died, many a long tramp with him—once for ten days in the mountains of New Hampshire—and the sense of exaltation he radiated when we reached the very top of a peak, and sat there in the clear air and sunshine and talked of his dreams of a better civilization: better schools, better churches, better homes—better not only in America but in far-off India and China and Africa. He was one who could see the whole world from a hilltop! Every political discussion we had, and we had hundreds—not always agreeing!—led finally to one thing: the best system for the maintenance of free men upon the soil.

It is inevitable that he should have become a college president: he was, beyond anything else, an educator. He was the president of three colleges, and never made education in itself an end. A college, like a man, must serve some great object outside and beyond itself. Education was good only as it had vision: only as it produced the good life, inspired the noblest human relationships. He was sometimes opposed by men of narrower vision: he never himself yielded anything whatsoever of his purpose. Buildings he built, and the number of students he increased, but what he really did was to fire old institutions with new purpose and new life, spiritualizing them with his own vision and enthusiasm. It is not surprising that he should have been selected by Theodore Roosevelt as a member of the earliest country life commission to study the problems of the American farm. Such a light as his could not be hid under a bushel! Nor that President Wilson should later send him to Europe with a committee to look into conditions there.

How well I remember my friend in Paris after the Great War. He was in the common khaki uniform—a leader in the army school at Beaune—but fighting as few soldiers ever fought for his old ideal of a better way of life upon the soil. He had already organized a Country Life Association in America; he was now dreaming of a world agricultural society—reaching to the ends of the earth. A great vision—possibly too far in advance of his time—but with what unrelenting zeal he followed it to the very end.

I remember letters I had from him postmarked at Bombay, and Tokio, and Peking, and Capetown—all radiating the same enthusiasm. He knew well the country life and the country problems of Europe, and of China and India and South Africa and Palestine: I think at the time of his death he knew and had thought more deeply on the problems of life on the soil in all parts of the earth, than any other man in America, if not in the world. He had a great book into which he was trying, during the last two or three years, to condense all the knowledge and wisdom of his life-time—perhaps an impossible task. It lies unfinished there in the little room at the top of the Jones Library.

It lies unfinished: but he himself was far greater than any book he could have written: no book he could have written could ever equal the book of his life, open now for all of us to read, the spirit and the purpose made clear, a symbol of unwearied devotion to a noble cause.

"The just man passeth away"—observes an old book—"but his light remaineth."

Winter Carnival

The first annual Winter Carnival held early in February was an innovation and a great success. The many events, including skiing, skijoring, hockey and basketball games, tobogganing, skating, and a successful Carnival Ball, were well attended, with a general spirit of enthusiasm.

The opening bomb was set off by Carleton J. Finkelstein at 2 P.M., Thursday. A game the State Freshmen played against Stockbridge School of Agriculture was won by the latter. At night Massachusetts State played Rhode Island State in a basketball game. Exhibitions of wrestling matches, fancy skating, general skating, and a brilliant display of fireworks preceded the game.

Friday afternoon there were skating races and skijoring matches at the college pond. Later, Sigma Beta Chi modeled a complete fashion show of seasonal costumes, winter clothes, cruise ensembles, evening gowns from Wm. Filene Sons and Company of Boston. Miss Hazel Berry of Northampton personally directed the show.

In the evening the Vienna Choir Boys furnished an excellent and varied program in Bowker Auditorium. Immediately after this entertainment the Carnival Ball began, at which were chosen the Snow Queen and her attendants: Miss Lois Macomber '38, Queen; Misses Marie Dow '36, Helen Rearden '36, Elizabeth Perry '35, Bettina Hall '39, Ann Barraclough of Lawrence, and Marie Ludlow of Orange, New Jersey, attendants. Fletcher Henderson and his band furnished the music.

Saturday morning, skiing events at Bull's Hill, with cross-country and slalom jumping, were featured. The afternoon was filled with a varsity hockey game with Amherst, skating exhibitions by Mr. Davenport and daughter Miriam of Longmeadow, and Mr. and Mrs. Labarge of Holyoke, a swimming meet between the undergraduates and alumni in the College pool, and a Cocoa party at Phi Zeta sorority house.

That evening, a varsity basketball game with Springfield was preceded by exhibition boxing and followed by "Vic" parties at the fraternities.

The committee in charge of the first Winter Carnival consisted of: Fred J. Murphy '36, Crawford Adams '38, and Carleton Finkelstein '36. The various committees and chairmen included: Skijoring, Fred Bull '36; Tobogganing, Robert Cole '39; Carnival Ball, David Rossiter '37; Skating, Robert MacCurdy '38; Skiing, Philip Layton '37; Fashion Show, Jessie Kinsman '38; Snowshoeing, Burleigh Boyer '39; Wrestling, Albert Gricius '37.

Othello

The Roister Doisters' spring drama this year was a presentation of Shakespeare's "Othello." Although the play is widely read, this was the first time the dramatic form has been given in Amherst. A special feature of the production was its dual character. The play was offered on two nights in order to permit alternation in the leading parts. This rather unusual variation was admirably carried out by John McConchie and Edward Law, who alternated the parts of Othello and Jago. Lucille Monroe and Constance Fortin did the same for Desdemona and Bianca.

The costumes which were many and varied were unusually beautiful. Special back-drops were designed and executed by James Robertson, Jr., of the department of landscape architecture. The scenery represented the most elaborate used at the College for several years, with nine different scenes providing background for the action taking place in Venice and Cyprus. Professor Rand of the English department coached and produced this unusually interesting interpretation of "Othello."

In later years, when the cares and trials of our then busy lives have nearly obliterated from our minds the events which, during these years, seem so vital and important, we may wish to delve into our pool of memories. When we gaze into that pool, our "Index" will help us to find reflected the events and happenings, both joyous and sad, which have given meaning to our college life.

The "Index" serves us not only as a guide for our memories in later life, but it serves us now as a brief history of the past year, recounting to us the occurrences which are of importance in the growth and development of our institution.

Of more practical value than these functions is the service which the "Index" renders as a directory to be used by undergraduates and faculty. Many students value it perhaps because through it they have gained recognition for the activities in which they have ably participated. This recognition gives hope for greater achievement to undergraduates who are thus inspired to strive for greater heights in years to come.

The Flint Oratorical Contest takes place every year during Commencement Week. It was established in 1881 by the late Mr. Charles L. Flint, former president of the college.

This contest has been under the direction of Prof. Walter E. Prince, who assists the contestants in the preparation of their orations. Last year it seemed as if Professor Prince was going to have to draft some of the members of his Argumentation and Oratory class, but the number of entrants became large enough when John Hoar, then a freshman, entered the contest. All of the speakers did exceptionally fine work, but the judges awarded the First Prize to John Hoar, whose performance was marked by vigor and by outstandingly good expression.

Adelphia is Massachusetts State College's senior honorary society. It is composed of seven senior students who are outstanding as leaders in student activities. These members are elected each year by the preceding group. Adelphia has for its purpose the promotion of student interest in the various functions and activities of the college. It assumes direction of those activities which are initiated by no other specific group but which are deemed necessary for a balanced campus life.

The football rallies of the past year were sponsored by this group, and in the past Adelphia has sponsored a number of Student forums.

The Senate is the student governing council at Massachusetts State College, and is composed of students elected from the junior and senior classes. The organization exerts a governing influence on student conduct, and represents the interests of the student body before the faculty.

During the past year the Senate has on a number of occasions provided support for undergraduate activity. The rejuvenation of the college band was greatly aided by action of the Senate. That organization also appointed a student committee to represent the student body in its demands for an A.B. degree at Massachusetts State College.

"We, the students of the Massachusetts State College, believe that the goal of education is character. The man of character deals fairly with himself and with others and would rather suffer failure than stoop to fraud. The Honor System stands for this attitude in all relations of the students with the faculty. In expression of our beliefs we pledge ourselves to support the Constitution of the Honor System."

Because of a belief in the truth of the above statement, the students of this campus have for many years been conducting examinations according to the honor system. The success or failure of our honor system rests to a great degree on the work of the Honor Council. Through the influence of the Council upon incoming students and through the work of the Council in keeping all students interested in the success of the system, the honor system has become an integral and valuable part of our college training.

The Maroon Key is a chapter of a national honorary society which has chapters at many of the leading colleges of the United States. In each case the chapter name is determined by the college color. Its members number ten, elected to serve during their sophomore year.

The main duty of the Maroon Key members is that of meeting visiting teams and other visiting organizations and acting as host to them during their stay on the campus.

The social activity of the society is limited to the Mardi Gras, a formal dance held in the spring as one of the highlights on the college social calendar. Maroon Key members receive the society insignia, a gold key with a maroon "M" on a white background, as well as white felt hat with maroon key and maroon band, for recognition.

The Women's Student Government Association was founded in March of the year 1919 when the women students at the Massachusetts State College had become so numerous that it was difficult for the senate to care for their needs. This organization is composed of all women students on campus and supervises the discipline of these students in their social activities, and fills any other needs which may arise. During this past year a scholarship has been started, vocational talks have been planned and social affairs, including teas and parties, have been sponsored.

The Student Religious Council was previously known as the student division of the United Religious Council which is composed of faculty members and clergy; but, due to confusion, the name was changed. Under the new name a constitution was adopted stating the purpose as being "to sponsor and direct all religious activities of a campus-wide nature."

The representatives of the four major religious clubs, the Christian Association for Protestant men, the Newman Club for Catholic students, the Menorah Club for Jewish students, and the Y. W. C. A. for Protestant women, make up the Council, which is the most important religious organization on the campus.

The membership of the Council includes three delegates from each of these organizations, the director of religious education, and two members of the United Religious Council.

The Massachusetts State College Press Club was founded in 1935 by a group of student newspaper correspondents in an endeavor to secure closer co-operation and united advancement in journalistic pursuits. In the absence of any course in journalism at the college, projects and studies have been conducted by this group to provide the members with instruction and an opportunity for application of theory.

The members occupy an important place in the regular college news service by releasing set-up and offering individual contacts with the larger Western Massachusetts newspapers. Another function of the club has been to supplement the regular college news, collecting facilities when conferences are being held on the campus. The Press Club is also conducting a study of radio technique, the emphasis of the study being placed on the preparation of the script and on microphone presentation.

At the present time, the Press Club has an application before the Student Life Committee for recognition as a professional journalistic organization.

Hiking enthusiasts at Massachusetts State College conduct an organized program of activity through their outing club. The activities of this organization include all-day hikes to distant mountains and a general get-together at the end of the school year.

The Outing Club sponsors Mountain Day, held each October and participated in by the whole college. This past year, Mountain Day was one of the most successful ever held. Ideal weather combined with a full program of events drew large numbers to the mountain.

Sunday hikes to Mount Toby, Mount Tom, an all-day hike to Mount Monadnock, and a number of other excursions make up the club's program. Work on Mount Toby, which has been done by the club, has aided greatly in making the mountain an ideal place for hikers.

Membership in the Outing Club is open to all students in the four-year course and in the two-year course of the Stockbridge School of Agriculture.

CLUBS and ORGANIZATIONS

THE MASSACHUSETTS COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Collegian is the official student newspaper of the college and is published weekly during the college year. Devoted to a presentation of college news as it occurs, the paper serves both an informative and an historical function. Interpretation of the news and designation of needs for improvements are done through the editorial columns of the paper.

During the past year, the Collegian has reached a high point of popularity and value to Massachusetts State College. A small increase in the subscription rate made it possible to publish a six-page paper each week. The securing of membership in the Associated Collegiate Press, a national college newspaper federation, made possible the inclusion of the Collegiate Digest rotogravure section, depicting college news of the country, with each issue of the Collegian.

The Collegian has been characterized by a wider use of pictures during the past year as well as a closer adherence to the accepted journalistic principles. Feature stories, columns, sports section, and communication column, together with an aggressive editorial policy have enabled the paper to fill the demand for variety.

The Collegian has been closely identified with the student campaign to secure the A.B. degree for Massachusetts State College, and was instrumental in establishing the fact that an A.B. degree is a desirable thing at the college.

Upon the death of Ex-President Kenyon L. Butterfield, a special edition of the Collegian was published. The decision to print this special edition was made at 11:30 in the morning, and the paper was delivered to the students at 8:30 that evening.

A high point in Collegian history was reached on February 6 with the publishing of a special eight-page paper. This special edition marked the sixty-fifth anniversary of the first M. S. C. college paper and was given wide circulation. It contained fifty-nine pictures and a large number of stories which portrayed the college as it exists today, and traced the development of both the college and the college newspaper.

The staff of the Collegian conducts the annual senior questionnaire, a poem of the month contest, and occasionally sponsors polls of the student body on important questions. Eighteen hundred copies of the paper are published, approximately four hundred and fifty being subscribed for by alumni and friends of the college.

A SHORT HISTORY OF THE ROISTER DOISTERS

A little more than twenty-six years ago, on January 10, 1910, the dramatic club of Massachusetts State College was founded. It was not until a year or so after its organization that the society came to be called the "Roister Doisters." There had been some drama on the campus for a year or two before the existence of the society, but it was from this time on that the productions became outstanding events of the college year.

The Roister Doisters began their history by giving in 1911 "The Private Secretary," which had three performances. In 1915, an original musical play, "Pluto's Daughter," by Massie and Smith of the class of 1915 and Anderson of the class of 1916, was an elaborate and popular production.

At the time of its organization the membership of the Roister Doisters was made up entirely of men. It was not until after 1920 that women gained a foothold on campus and began to make themselves participants in the college functions. In 1931, a co-ed was elected president of the Roister Doisters, and again in 1933, another girl, Shirley McCarthy, was president of the organization.

Professor Rand has written two of the plays which have been produced here. They are "John Epps," which reincarnated, for the semi-centennial celebration, the martial personality of Colonel Clark, one of the founders of the college, and "Sidney," reproducing the daring, versatile life of the Elizabethan genius, Sir Philip Sidney.

The best play ever put on by the Roister Doisters was, perhaps, "As You Like It," given in the Ravine in June, 1933, with Shirley McCarthy as Rosalind. Both the setting and the acting of the play were the most effective in the history of the society.

The Roister Doisters, together with the rest of the college, have been growing in ability and character. Not only have its plays been notably successful, but it has brought to our campus distinguished guests from the world of the theater.

LANDSCAPE CLUB

President	Dean Glick, '36
Vice-President	Philip Layton, '37
Secretary-Treasurer	James Davidson, '36

The Landscape Club is composed of those students who are majoring in the Department of Landscape Architecture. Speakers prominent in the field of landscape architecture are the features of the monthly meetings of the club. Among those who have spoken before the club this year is A. D. Taylor, a former graduate of Massachusetts State College, now of Cleveland, and who is probably the outstanding man in his profession in the country.

Another prominent feature of the club's program is a dance which is held every spring. This affair is usually very well attended and is the outstanding social affair for Landscape Architecture majors.

THE FERNALD ENTOMOLOGY CLUB

President	Harry Pratt
Secretary-Treasurer	John Hanson
Faculty Adviser	Dr. Harvey L. Sweetman

The Fernald Entomology Club was founded by the students and faculty of M. A. C. on January 14, 1925, and was the successor to several other more ephemeral organizations. The club was named in honor of Dr. Henry T. Fernald, who was at that time head of the Department of Entomology and internationally recognized as an entomologist. Its aim is to widen the interest of entomology majors in their chosen subject through talks and discussions, and to facilitate and foster connections between undergraduates and alumni by means of a year-book which is now in its fifth year of publication.

Most of the outstanding entomologists of the world have spoken before the Fernald Entomology Club at one time or another. This year's speakers included: Dr. R. N. Chapman, the highest paid entomologist in the world; Dr. Forrest Miller of Amherst College; William Marshall; Dr. Carruth; Philip Spear, '37, and Miss Marion Smith, '35, who talked on their summer's work with light traps.

Meetings have been held monthly throughout the college year since the founding of the organization. The meetings include talks and reviews by the staff, the student body, and by distinguished visitors and outsiders.

HISTORY—SOCIOLOGY CLUB

President	Robert S. Bray
Vice-President	Dorothy Nurmi
Vice-President	Constance Hall
Vice-President	Lewis Gillett
Secretary	Gladys Corkum

The History-Sociology Club, now completing its third year, has become the international relations club of the Campus, succeeding a former organization of that name, which no longer functions.

The club represents the national movement under the Carnegie Peace Foundation and is also the recognized spokesman of the League of Nations.

The purpose of the club is to provide opportunity for informal discussion of studies in history and sociology, in political science, and in international relations. In order to encourage these studies, books have been provided by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

History-Sociology, and general Social Science, majors are eligible for active membership, while other students may be associate members. Meetings are held once every three weeks.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

President	Marion Jones, '36
Vice-President	Ruth Wood, '37
Secretary	Elva Britton, '36
Treasurer	Katherine O'Brien, '36
Social	Marion Kay Wingate, '37
	Lois Crabtree, '36
Executive Members	{ Dorothea Donnelly, '37
	{ Jane Schopfer, '38
	{ Elizabeth Clapp, '39
Publicity	Phyllis Nelson, '38

The purpose of the Home Economics Club is to develop a professional spirit among the members; to keep up with current topics of the home economics world; to bring members in contact with larger home economics organizations; and to cultivate friendships among girls in this field.

Meetings of the club are held at the Homestead, and all home economics majors are active members. The project for the year has been making of bibs and sheets for the children of the Amherst Day School Nursery.

DAIRY CLUB

President	Milton Snow, '36
Vice-President	Clare Pineo, '36
Secretary-Treasurer	Lynn Glazier, '36

The Dairy Club, founded in 1933, is one of the newer departmental clubs. The organization was established for the purpose of creating a stronger department of dairy science through closer student cooperation. The club holds meetings at regular intervals throughout the college year. Once each month a speaker addresses the club on chemistry, bacteriology, economics, or other subjects related to dairy science. The organization has been instrumental in bringing students in contact with active workers in the field of dairying. Meetings of the organization are open for all students interested in the production and distribution of milk and milk products.

ANIMAL HUSBANDRY CLUB

President	Raymond Proctor, '36
Secretary	Lemuel Osborne, '37
Treasurer	John Ruda, '38

The Animal Husbandry was established at Massachusetts State College as a professional organization for the purpose of bringing together students taking courses in animal husbandry. Economists, scientists, and writers, as well as men in the practical field, address the organization from time to time, and an effort is made to strengthen the relationships between the college student and the research and practical worker in the fields of animal husbandry.

PHYSICS CLUB

President	William R. Bliss, '36
Secretary-Treasurer	Domenic De Felice, '36

The Physics Club meets once every three weeks, at which time the members discuss subjects of interest to those taking advanced courses in Physics. The purpose of the club is to acquaint these students with the work which has been done, and is being done, in specialized fields of Physics. After each meeting, light refreshments are enjoyed, and a social hour follows with music of the various recorded orchestras.

CHRISTIAN FEDERATION

President	Bessie Proctor, '36
Vice-President	Raymond Wyman, '37
Secretary	Dorothy Koehler, '38
Treasurer	Clarence Packard, '36
Chairman Women's Committee	Edna Sprague, '38
Chairman Men's Committee	George Milne, '37

The Christian Federation was formed this year by combining the old Christian Association and the Y. W. C. A., and is the Massachusetts State College Division of the New England Student Christian Movement. The organization is divided into a men's section and a women's section which function under the leadership of their respective chairmen. This year the following study groups have been conducted: Church and Worship, Peace Social Action, and Christian Outreach.

The purpose of the Christian Federation is to furnish the students with the means of finding the significance of religion in the world, and of strengthening their lives through the spirit of God.

THE NEWMAN CLUB

President	Myles Boylan, '36
Vice-President	Anna A. Flynn, '36
Secretary	Helena McMahon, '37
Representatives to the Student Religious Council	{ Donald T. Donnelly, '36 Florence Saulnier, '36

The Newman Club of Massachusetts State College, in which every Catholic student on the campus automatically becomes a member, was founded by Rev. Fr. Sheedy, pastor of St. Brigid's Church, in November, 1929. Its purpose is to draw together the Catholic students at the college in an organization of mutual interests. The club's program is conducted in connection with the National Federation of College Catholic Clubs, and with the Student Religious Council on the campus. Each year prominent Catholic clergymen and laymen are invited to address the meetings, which are open to the entire student body and the faculty. Mr. Frederic Troy of the English Department of the college addressed the group on "Newman" at a meeting held this fall.

MENORAH CLUB

President	Moses Entin, '37
Vice-President	Florence Bilsky, '36
Secretary-Treasurer	Ruth Blassberg, '37

The Menorah Club was revived in March, 1934, by the Jewish students with an aim to "put its members in contact with all the romance and poignancy of Jewish traditions, with all the inquiring activity of modern Jewish effort, with all the science and art that is building the Jewish future." The club attempts to realize these aims through several agencies: public lectures, book purchases, study groups, and contacts with other collegiate Jewish organizations.

During the past year there were two study groups, one of which studied "The Making of a Modern Jew," by Rabbi Milton Steinberg; the other, "Judaism in a Changing Civilization," by Dr. Samuel Dinin. The study was made very much worthwhile by the assistance and counsel of Dr. Maxwell Goldberg, faculty adviser to the club.

RADIO CLUB

The Radio Club was organized on the Massachusetts State College campus in the fall of 1935 by Roderic Bliss. The club is similar to the Physics Club, and all radio amateurs are entitled to join. There have been various speakers on radio and communication work. During the fall, Mr. Bliss spoke upon the subject "Amateur Radio Receivers," and Mr. Tanner discussed "Ultra-high Frequencies."

AMERICAN STUDENT UNION

President

Clare Pineo, '36

Secretary-Treasurer

Marion Shaw, '38

The American Student Union was organized in January, 1936, an outgrowth of the League for Industrial Democracy which, in 1935, had come to take the place of the former Social Science Club. The purpose is to study and, if possible, to act upon important social and economic issues. The topics under discussion are education, academic freedom, social security, the peace problem, the race problem, and the social system.

The membership is unlimited and the meetings are held weekly.

K. O. CLUB

President

Frank Kingsbury, '38

Vice-President

Lillian Jackson, '37

Secretary-Treasurer

Dorothy Koehler, '38

Historian

Kenneth Benson, '38

The "Karry On Club" was organized in 1927 by a group of co-eds and enlarged in 1929 to allow men students to join. The purpose of the K. O. Club is to keep alive the spirit of 4-H Club work on the campus, to establish stronger friendships among the members, to insure the permanency of the organization, to provide an opportunity for the members to meet regularly, and to promote a wider interest in 4-H Club work throughout the state.

The club has had an average membership of 35 through the years, and the meetings are held monthly at the Farley 4-H Club house. The State leaders of the Extension Service of the college are the advisers.

During the past year, the club has had regular business meetings, and several speakers from the college. At various times, members have assisted the state leaders with their work. The president, Frank Kingsbury, represented the club and the college at the American Country Life Association held in Ohio.

DANCES AND ENTERTAINMENTS

The Sophomore-Senior Hop, held the night of graduation, June 10, 1935, was a fitting climax to the social activities of the year. Decorations featured a maritime motif and a lighthouse helped considerably to depict realistically the ocean scene represented in Drill Hall.

Invited guests of the evening were: His Excellency, Governor James M. Curley, and Miss Mary Curley, President and Mrs. Hugh P. Baker, and Dean and Mrs. William L. Machmer. Major and Mrs. Herbert E. Watkins and Dr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Radcliffe were chaperons.

Mal Hallet, who had played here three years before, and his thirteen-piece band furnished music for the dance. With Mal Hallet and his band came Lila Rose, a featured singer.

David P. Rossiter, chairman, Robert Couhig, Phillip Layton, Robert Spiller, Kenneth Higgins, James Cutter, Isadore Barr, and David Peterson were the committee who worked to make the evening a success.

MILITARY BALL

The 1935-1936 dance season was opened December seventh with the Military Ball. The main feature of the decorations was the cannon on either side of the orchestra. The walls were adorned with crossed swords and muskets alternating. A color scheme of blue and gold was adhered to.

Guests of the evening were President and Mrs. Hugh P. Baker and Dean and Mrs. William L. Machmer. The chaperons included members of the college staff of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. Horace L. Aplington, Major and Mrs. Herbert E. Watkins, and Captain and Mrs. Leo B. Connors.

Music was furnished by the popular ten-piece Barbary Coast Orchestra of Dartmouth College. An important part of the evening's program was the grand march led by Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. Aplington, followed by the selection of Eleanor Fillmore as Honorary Colonel of the evening.

The success of this Military Ball was due largely to the following committee: Norvin Laubenstein, chairman; Frederick Bull, Harry Johnson, Kenwood Ross, Harold Midgely, and Chester Gates.

CARNIVAL BALL

The Carnival Ball, the first in the history of Massachusetts State College, was held February seventh as part of the Winter Sports Week-End. The Drill Hall in which the dance was held was decorated in black and silver following a motif in keeping with the nature of the event. The lights were hung with crystals of different colors, and upon the walls snow scenes were cleverly worked out.

Guests of the evening were President and Mrs. Hugh P. Baker, Dean and Mrs. William L. Machmer, Professor and Mrs. Curry S. Hicks. Dr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Radcliffe and Major and Mrs. Herbert E. Watkins were chaperons.

The committee was able to obtain the music of Fletcher Henderson's fourteen-piece orchestra of New York City. The climax of the evening was reached when the Snow Queen and her attendants were chosen. Lois Macomber was elected queen. The members of her court were Marie Dow, Helen Reardon, Elizabeth Perry, Bettina Hall, Ann Barroclough and Marie Ludlow.

The committee which was largely responsible for the success of this first winter Carnival Ball was as follows: David P. Rossiter, chairman; Priscilla

Bradford, Robert Spiller, Wendell Lapham, Robert Couhig, Herbert Brown, Norman Blake, Fred Sievers, Cyrus French and Rexford Avery.

BAY STATE REVUE

On Friday evening, December thirteenth, the music organizations of the Massachusetts State College collaborated to present the annual Bay State Revue. The one-act operetta, "Trial by Jury," by Gilbert and Sullivan, was the outstanding feature of the evening's performance. The operetta is the first of its type to be presented here, and it is hoped that its marked success will inspire the committee in charge to attempt many similar presentations in future years.

Leads in the operetta were sung by Miss Alma Boyden, '37, as the plaintiff, James Kerr, '36, as the defendant, Myles Boylan, '36, as the counsel, Norman Grant, '37, as judge, Ivan Cousins, '39, as usher, and Milton Auerbach, '39, as jury foreman.

Excellent as were the performances of the Glee Clubs and the orchestra, in no measure did they exceed that of the college band which, led by Charles P. Farnum, opened the Revue with the "Alda Overture" by McCaughey. One of the selections of the band, "The Old Home on the Farm," featured a trumpet solo by Vernon Coutu of the class of 1937.

Other features completing the revue consisted of a guitar and violin duet by James Lee, '38, and Howard Parker, '36; tap dancing by Anna LeRose, graduate student, Betty Eaton, '39, and Ray Degraff, '39, with Miss Helen Downing of the class of 1937 acting as accompanist; a musical selection, "Melody Moods," with Misses G. V. Smith, '36, Phyllis Nelson, '38, and Marjorie and Muriel Cain, '37; and musical interludes by the newly founded college orchestra, "The Statesmen," led by Marciene Whitcomb.

Credit for the success of this year's Bay State Revue must be given to Mr. Frank B. Stratton, musical director, and to the committee in charge, Edward V. Law, John McConchie and Lester Levine, all of the class of 1936.

An eventful Dad's Day, celebrated on Saturday, October 12, 1935, marked the tenth successive year of the setting aside of such a day for the reception of the students' dads as guests of the college. Four hundred and forty-one dads registered this year, topping the number of the previous year by only eleven, but that of two years ago by over one hundred.

The day's program opened with the horse show under the auspices of the military department. Both military students and co-eds took part. The remainder of the morning was spent in inspection of the campus and its buildings.

The football and soccer games with Connecticut State and the cross-country meet with Northeastern took place in the afternoon and resulted in a triple victory for the home teams. In the freshman-sophomore rope pull, held after the games, the freshmen gave the sophomores a thorough ducking in the college pond. This event, usually held earlier in the year, had been postponed due to the drawing of the college pond.

FOOTBALL SEASON

Maintaining the high standard of victory which Taube-coached teams have always upheld, the Statesmen's 1935 football edition again kept over the five hundred mark in the matter of wins and losses, and finished a difficult schedule with a record of five victories and four defeats to its credit.

Opening the season away from home, the State team faced Williams at Williamstown on September 28. The game was played in a terrific downpour with the Statesmen being at a definite disadvantage because of the greater weight of the hard-charging Williams line, and ultimately suffering a 28 to 0 setback.

The following Saturday, playing on Alumni field for the first time, the Taubemen showed great improvement, outplaying a powerful and again heavier Polar Bear eleven, but going down to defeat by the slim margin of one point. This 7 to 6 defeat was the first in a series of contests in which the State gridders learned the value of the point after touchdown, it being the factor which ultimately decided two contests against them and one for them.

On October 12, playing before a Dad's Day crowd, the Taubemen broke into the win column with an impressive 25 to 12 victory over Connecticut State College. The game marked the last appearance of the Statesmen before a home crowd for a period of six weeks, the out-of-town games starting on the following Saturday with the team meeting Rhode Island State College at Kingston.

In the game against "Rhody" the State eleven reached new heights in excellence of play, and rolled out an impressive 7 to 6 victory over a formidable and tricky Ram combination. The score is little indication of the superiority of the Taubemen over the Rhode Islanders, and in this game the Statesmen showed a great running back in "Powerhouse" Koenig.

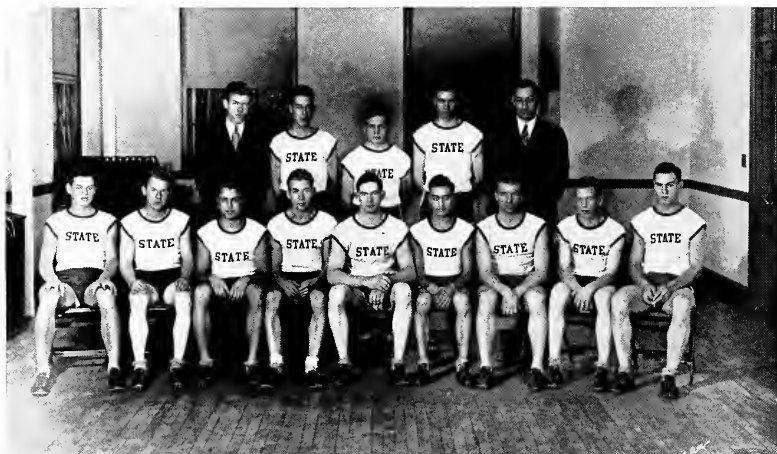

On October 26, the State team had little difficulty in downing a weak Worcester Tech eleven 20 to 6 at Worcester, but on the following Saturday, the Taubemen faced a much more difficult opponent in the annual game with Amherst College.

Playing on the mud-soaked Pratt field, the Statesmen out-rushed, out-passed, and generally out-played their town rivals, only to suffer a 14 to 0 defeat. The majority of the game was played in Amherst territory, Johnny Stewart's excellent punting keeping the Sabrinas well back to their goal line, but on just two occasions the Purple eleven succeeded in breaking through the Maroon and White defense for successful touchdown plays.

On November 9, playing in Boston, the Statesmen again learned the value of one point, going down to defeat, 13 to 12, before Northeastern in the most exciting game of the season.

On November 16, playing the last game away from home, the Taubemen met little opposition in subduing an unvictorious Rensselaer team 28 to 13, and the following week the season ended with the game against Tufts on the Alumni field.

Here again the Taubemen made a brilliant showing and acquitted themselves for previous defeats by conquering the Jumbos for the first time since 1925, in a well-played contest that ended with the score of 19 to 13. A contingent of senior lettermen, playing their last game under the Maroon and White banner, turned in a performance which was unequaled all season. To Adams, Peterson, Koenig, Allen, Sturtevant, Stewart, Tikofski, Shulkin, and Lehr goes the credit for a victory to which State fans have looked forward for the past ten years.

THE BASKETBALL SEASON

The 1935-1936 Maroon and White basketball team completed one of the most unsuccessful seasons in the history of the college, having a record of two wins in fourteen games. The court five was the first Taube-coached team, at State, to fall below a seasonal record of five hundred per cent.

Opening the season on the home court, on December 18, the inexperienced Statesmen met their first defeat at the hands of a veteran Middlebury five, 30 to 17. The State five consisted, for the most part, of sophomores who were playing their first game for the Maroon and White, and who had not yet fitted into the Taube system of play.

Two days later, playing in Cambridge, the Taubemen were tapped in the last thirty seconds of play, 31 to 30, by the inspired playing of Captain Garth of the M. I. T. quintet. At half time the State team led 25 to 12, but Garth's sixteen points were enough to help his team to a very close win. "Lefty" Barr, star forward of the State team, was the outstanding performer for the losers, scoring eight points before being taken from the game on fouls.

On January 11, the Statesmen broke into the win column for the first time by defeating a strong Williams team, 28 to 20, in the best played game of the season. "Lefty" Barr, scoring ten points, was the spark plug of the Maroon and White attack. Barr's one-handed baskets, and his sterling defensive work in keeping the Williams' star, Eddie Stanley, scoreless, were instrumental in the first State victory of the season.

In the next game the Taubemen continued the play that had earned them a victory over Williams, and defeated Connecticut State College, at Storrs, on January 15 by a score of 58 to 32. Captain John Stewart, by scoring fifteen points, was high scorer for the evening.

On January 18, the first of the intra-town series with Amherst College was played at Pratt Cage. The Jeffmen, with the best team that they have had in years, had little difficulty in defeating the Statesmen, 44 to 24.

The remainder of the season saw the Statesmen defeated in every game; their inexperience as compared to that of their rivals being a big factor in their losses. On January 21, the State five lost to Middletown by a score of 30 to 26, after having led through most of the game. The next two games were played at home, but the Statesmen fared little better than on the road. On February 6, playing the first game of the new semester, Coach Taube's team was beaten 52 to 46, by Rhode Island State College, in a fast, free-scoring game. On February 8, the Statesmen fell as thirteenth victim of the powerful Springfield College team. The Indians had little difficulty in winning 43 to 25.

The next game, played on February 12 at Williamstown, was a return match with Williams College, and here the home team squared accounts for their previous loss, by winning 47 to 36. "Lefty" Barr featured for the losers and scored thirteen points. Returning to the home court, on February 15, the Statesmen were defeated for the second time by Coach Jordan's Jeffmen; this time the score was 47 to 31. Again on February 19, in a game with the sharpshooting University of New Hampshire team as opponents, the Taubemen lost 52 to 36. The game marked the last appearance of the team on the home court, as the last three games were played away.

On February 22 Rensselaer proved too much for the State five and defeated them, 39 to 30. Again, on the following Saturday, at Worcester, the Taubemen were defeated for the first time in five years by a Worcester Tech hoop team, losing 40 to 26. Barr was high scorer of the evening with twelve points to his credit. On Wednesday evening, March 4, playing the last game of the season at Medford, the State team suffered the twelfth setback of the season, and lost 46 to 19 to Tufts College.

Although the season just completed was one of the worst experienced in recent years, the State basketball hopes for the coming season look very bright. Lack of experienced material, more than anything else, accounted for the poor showing of the team. Captain Stewart is the only man being lost by graduation, however, and the prospects for next season's court team seem very favorable.

"Lefty" Barr, who distinguished himself throughout the season by his superb play, was the high scorer for the season, accounting for 124 of his team's points.

THE MILITARY DEPARTMENT

Under the new officers, Colonel Aplington and Captain Conner, the Military Department is maintaining its standards, and is endeavoring to provide an adequate training for reserves in the United States Army. The Cavalry Unit makes a trip each summer to Fort Ethan Allen in Vermont where it encamps and goes through field manoeuvres.

The mounts with which the Military Department of the Massachusetts State College is provided, may well be a source of pride to us, for under the Army re-mount system the department is able to get horses of fine breeding and good qualities. One by one the old animals go—this year we parted with old “Goofy,” a name to bring anguish to the sophomore neophyte—but the stables are steadily building themselves up to a higher standard.

It is our hope and our belief that the Military Department will continue to give the students of the Massachusetts State College practical knowledge of the problems of national defense, as well as the healthful discipline of the army, which in itself creates a great measure of dignity and self-respect.

1935 BASEBALL SEASON

Playing a thirteen-game schedule, and being victorious in the greater part of their contests, the Statesmen completed a successful baseball season last June. Although the Taubemen were twice defeated by Amherst College, in the annual intra-town series, victories over Tufts, Wesleyan and Connecticut State are prominent in the records of the 1935 nine.

The Statesmen opened the season before a home crowd on Alumni Field, on Saturday, April 20, bowing before a hard-hitting Williams ball team 3 to 1. Stevens, pitching for the visitors, limited the State batters to two hits, both by "Al" Ingalls, sophomore catcher, who was playing his first game under the Maroon and White.

On Thursday, April 25, the Statesmen played host to the Norwich University ball club, and suffered their second defeat of the season. The game was very closely contested, going to eleven innings before the Cadets were finally able to eke out a 6 to 5 victory.

Two days later, on Saturday, April 27, the Taubemen played the first of the two-game series with Amherst, at Pratt Field. Epple, sophomore mound ace for the Sabrinas, pitched his team to a 4 to 2 victory over the State nine. The game turned out to be a pitcher's battle after the first inning, with Epple finally beating State's Tikofski.

The State nine was inactive for a rather long time after the Amherst defeat. On Wednesday, May 1, a game scheduled with Holy Cross, at Worcester, had to be called off because of excessive wind, and again, on Saturday, May 4, the first of a two-game series to be played with Connecticut State College was postponed because of inclement weather. The rest seemed to be profitable to the Statesmen, however, for they finally hit their stride and won the next six games.

The first victory of the season came at the expense of the Connecticut State nine. Playing at Storrs, the Statesmen came through with a sudden furious onslaught of hitting, and completely battered the Nutmeggers 8 to 0. This was only the first in a series of well-played games which the State team won during the next few weeks. On Saturday, May 11, Wesleyan fell as second victim to the fury of State's hitting and went home on the short end of a 3 to 1 score.

On Thursday, May 16, the State team had little difficulty in chalking up its third successive victory of the season, over Trinity, 8 to 5, and on the following Saturday, May 18, the Taubemen played a beautiful game on Alumni Field, setting back a powerful Tufts nine 3 to 2. The Tufts game was a highlight in the Maroon and White season. The game was exceptionally well played throughout, with the Statesmen trailing 2 to 1 in the first half of the ninth. With two men on bases, Captain Johnny Consolatti played a typical "Frank Merriwell" role, smashing out a safe hit to score his teammates with the tying and winning runs of the game.

On May 21, State played the postponed Connecticut game at home. Again the home team had little difficulty with the Nutmeggers, this time defeating them 16 to 5, and on the following day the Statesmen journeyed to Worcester to earn the sixth win of the season at the expense of Worcester Tech. The Statesmen won 17 to 12 in the Tech contest.

The next two games were also played away from home, and in the first, the Taubemen suffered their first defeat in seven starts and the fourth of the season. Playing at Durham, New Hampshire, on Saturday, May 25, against the University of New Hampshire, the Maroon and White was completely defeated 15 to 6, but on Thursday, May 30, the Statesmen were again able to break into the win column, defeating Union at Schenectady, 4 to 3.

On Saturday, June 8, appearing before a commencement week-end crowd, in a game played in a slight drizzle, the State team finished the season by bowing before the Amherst nine for the second time, to the score of 10 to 2.

Again the Taube-coached team completed its season with its record of wins and defeats over the five hundred mark. The 1935 Maroon and White ball club won seven games and lost six.

FRATERNITIES

THE INTERFRATERNITY CUP

The Interfraternity Cup was won this year by Kappa Sigma Fraternity, which, by virtue of the fact that it has won the Cup three times, now has permanent possession of it.

During the last five years, this Cup has been awarded to the house which has proved itself most outstanding in athletics, scholarship, and academic activities. The chapters which have won it are:

- 1931 Kappa Sigma
- 1932 Kappa Epsilon
- 1933 Kappa Sigma
- 1934 Theta Chi
- 1935 Kappa Sigma

There were several substitutes suggested for the Interfraternity Cup-plaques, a new cup, or multiple cups. At a meeting last fall, the Interfraternity Council voted that the awards should be three cups, one for each of the major fields of competition. These prizes are never to be retired.

This system gives an opportunity for much keener competition, and should put new life into the Interfraternity contests.

THE INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL

The Interfraternity Council was organized with the purpose of producing cooperation and good will among the houses on the campus. It consists of two representatives from each chapter, who meet to discuss such matters as rushing, Hell Week, banquet dates, the Interfraternity Contest, and other matters pertaining to the function of the fraternities on the campus.

This year the matter of fraternity politics has been a topic of much discussion; a solution has at last been worked out by the Senate which will, it is hoped, give the organizations their proper place in the life of the college, and make possible more orderly and more representative elections.

The Council has made a study of living conditions and eating facilities and is cooperating more than ever with the Administration in creating suitable and healthful conditions in the houses.

The fraternities of the Massachusetts State College were represented by two delegates from the Council at the National Interfraternity Conference which was held in New York during the Christmas holidays.

The Interfraternity Ball held May 1 has, since its introduction two years ago, grown to be one of the most important social events of the year, and this year's dance promises to be a gala affair.

Q. T. V.

Founded at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, May 12, 1869

Colors: White and Brown

It was on the twelfth of May, 1869, that six young men, Frederick W. Sommers, George Mackie, William R. Peabody, Lemuel L. Holmes, Russell W. Livermore, and Edward A. Fisher, gathered in a room in South College to formulate plans for the first fraternity that was established on this campus. The meetings of the society were of great importance and were held behind closed doors. As was the custom with so many college secret societies, the members carried on intensive literary studies. The old records contain accounts of many scholarly talks that were presented.

In 1874 a chapter of Q. T. V. was established at the University of Maine. Later other chapters were organized at the University of New Hampshire, Pennsylvania State College, Worcester Polytechnic Institute, and Cornell University. Because of the conservative standards of the Amherst Chapter regarding expansion, however, the fraternity became a local in 1889 and has remained so ever since.

For many years the organization had quarters in North and South Colleges. In 1915 with the aid of the alumni, who formed a corporation, the fraternity purchased its present property. The active membership of Q. T. V. is thirty students.

PHI SIGMA KAPPA

Alpha Chapter

National Organization

Founded at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, March 15, 1873

Fifty Chapters

Sixteen Alumni Chapters

Publication: "The Signet"

Colors: Silver and Magenta Red

The Alpha Chapter of Phi Sigma Kappa was founded at Massachusetts Agricultural College on March 15, 1873, in old North College. The six founders were Jabez William Clay, Joseph Franklin Barrett, Henry Hague, Xenos Young Clark, Frederick George Campbell, and William Penn Brooks.

For five years the fraternity had no outside name, and was known to its members as the "Three T's," "Hell's Huddle," or "The Huddlers." In 1878 the name Phi Sigma Kappa was adopted, and the Grand Chapter was organized with Clay as president.

In 1888 a chapter was formed at Albany Medical College, and in 1899 Gamma Chapter at Cornell. The Amherst and Albany chapters were then called Alpha and Beta respectively. Thus Phi Sigma Kappa was well on its way to becoming a large national fraternity. By slow, careful growth, Phi Sigma Kappa has increased to forty-nine chapters, spreading over the entire country.

The Alpha Chapter built its present house, located at the entrance of the Massachusetts State College campus, and in the summer of 1933 added a new dining-hall for the use of its members.

KAPPA SIGMA

Gamma Delta Chapter

Established May 18, 1904

National Organization founded at the University of Virginia, December 10, 1869

One Hundred and Eight Chapters

Eighty-six Alumni Chapters

Publication: "The Caduceus"

Colors: Scarlet, Green and White

In 1868, two secret societies were established at the new Massachusetts Agricultural College. The second of these, Delta Gamma Kappa, in 1904 became a chapter of Kappa Sigma, a national fraternity founded at the University of Virginia in 1869. The move was in every way a noteworthy event and has never been regretted by the chapter.

In recent years, Kappa Sigma has ranked with the strongest and most active fraternities on the campus. Its effort to maintain a well-balanced group has been eminently successful, as witnessed by the fact that three times in the past five years Kappa Sigma has won the trophy provided for interfraternity competition by Dean Machmer in 1930. The cup is now in the permanent possession of the fraternity.

It has been in the past and is now the purpose of Kappa Sigma to develop an atmosphere of fellowship; and the program of the chapter has been planned to this end.

THETA CHI Theta Chapter

Established December 29, 1911

National Organization founded at Norwich University, April 10, 1856

Fifty Chapters

Twenty-five Alumni Chapters

Publication: "The Rattle"

Colors: Red and White

The Theta Chapter of Theta Chi fraternity had its origin as a local organization, Theta Phi, founded at Massachusetts Agricultural College in February of 1908. It was recognized as a college fraternity on October 5 of that same year. Theta Phi was the fifth fraternity at the college and was established by a group of sixteen men to further their ideals of fellowship.

The members made the dormitories their place of meeting and it was not until 1909 that the fraternity secured a home. In the fall of 1911 the desire for affiliation with a strong national group culminated in the change of Theta Phi to Theta Chapter of Theta Chi.

Seven years later the fraternity secured larger quarters, and again, after the World War, another change gave the group a house on Pleasant street. No change, however, has been as important to the fraternity as the one effected last March. Working toward a common goal, the members of Theta Chi attained their objective, a new modern fraternity house located on the edge of the college campus.

SIGMA PHI EPSILON

Massachusetts Alpha Chapter

Established April 27, 1912

National Organization founded at Richmond College, November 1, 1901

Sixty-seven Chapters

Twenty-five Alumni Chapters

Publication: "The Journal"

Colors: Purple and Red

The history of Sigma Phi Epsilon at Massachusetts State College is similar to that of most of the other fraternities on the campus. The organization started as a local fraternity, grew larger, and ultimately became a national.

Albert Dodge, '12, was the man responsible for the foundation of the old local, Sigma Tau Delta. After two years of rapid growth the group petitioned for admittance into the national fraternity of Sigma Phi Epsilon. A charter was soon granted the local organization and Albert Dodge, '12, became the first president.

The World War left its mark on the membership of the fraternity, several of the members not returning from the great conflict. The years after the war were good ones for Sigma Phi Epsilon until 1925. A slump occurred and it took several years before the fraternity regained its former standing, which it has maintained ever since.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

Gamma Zeta Chapter

Established May 18, 1912

National Organization founded at Boston University, November 2, 1902

Eighty-four Chapters

Forty-two Alumni Chapters

Publication: "The Cross and Crescent"

Colors: Purple, Green and Gold

On May 18, 1912, the local fraternity, Gamma Delta Sigma, was installed as the Gamma Zeta Chapter of Lambda Chi Alpha. The mother chapter was founded at Boston University in November, 1902, and the local chapter was the first to be added to the original group. Except during the World War, when ninety-eight per cent of its members were active in the country's service, Gamma Zeta Chapter has remained active since its founding in 1912.

In 1913, the chapter obtained as its home the house it now occupies. The chapter has been continuously active both as a member of Lambda Chi Alpha, and among the fraternities on the campus.

ALPHA SIGMA PHI

Gamma Chapter

Established 1913

National Organization founded at Yale University, 1845

Thirty-two Chapters

Ten Alumni Associations

Publication: "The Tomahawk"

Colors: Cardinal and Stone

Alpha Sigma Phi Fraternity was founded as a sophomore society at Yale University in 1845. With each of the three upper classes having a society of its own, membership in several organizations was usual. This situation contributed to a rather inactive period of the fraternity. In 1907, however, the Yale chapter was revived, not as a sophomore organization, but as a university fraternity. The organization has grown until at the present time there are thirty-two chapters of this national fraternity established at colleges and universities in the United States.

The Gamma Chapter of Alpha Sigma Phi was established at Massachusetts State College in 1913 and was chartered by what was formerly known as the College Shakespearean Club, a literary society. The petition of this group for membership in Alpha Sigma Phi was accepted in 1913.

The purpose of this chapter has been to promote scholarship, fellowship and brotherhood. Gamma Chapter claims a large number of college faculty members in the colleges of the United States. It also boasts a cooperative body of alumni.

ALPHA GAMMA RHO

Mu Chapter

Established April 28, 1917

National Organization founded at University of Ohio, April 4, 1908

Thirty-two Chapters

Twenty-six Alumni Associations

Publication: "The Sickle and Sheaf"

Colors: Green and Gold

Mu Chapter of Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity originally started as Beta Kappa Phi, a local fraternity, in the fall of 1909. It was formally organized in February of the following year, based on the triple ideals of character, scholarship, and college loyalty. The organization was incorporated under the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and the fraternity rented a house. In 1913 the organization secured an attractive home on Pleasant street. Four years later the members of the group reached the decision to become a chapter of a national fraternity. A. H. Nehrling, Alpha, assisted the group in contacting the national headquarters of Alpha Gamma Rho, and at the Ames convention, that same year, Lincoln D. Kelsey presented the petition that made Beta Kappa Phi, Mu Chapter of Alpha Gamma Rho.

Glen Campbell, then editor of "The Sickle and Sheaf," installed the new chapter with the aid of Ford S. Price, Alpha '13, J. B. Spaulding, Gamma '15, and W. L. Slate, Beta '09. By April 29, 1917, twenty-two men had been initiated and Frank S. Binks had been elected first noble ruler. The next year the World War greatly depleted the strength of the fraternity, but in recent years the chapter has continued its growth and now has two hundred and seventy-five alumni. The chapter is conducted by the members themselves with the assistance of a faculty member.

Alpha Gamma Rho's aims are those consistent with the maintenance of high standards of scholarship and morality among its members, and a cooperative attitude toward the activities of the college.

KAPPA EPSILON

Founded at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, February 1, 1913

Colors: Garnet, Gray and Gold

In October, 1912, a small group of non-fraternity men met in French Hall to organize a society which would admit to membership those men who should conform to the simple ideals of manhood, service, and democracy in which the seventeen charter members believed. The initial letters of the words of the motto chosen by this group were Kappa Epsilon. Early in the following spring the constitution of the new fraternity was accepted by the Student Life Committee.

The National Federation of Common Clubs, with which Kappa Epsilon became affiliated early in 1914, played an important part in the history of the fraternity until 1921, when the fraternity was reorganized to conform more closely than before to the other campus groups. The chapter had about fifty members until the war period, when, like other college organizations, it struggled along under great difficulties, with most of the juniors and seniors in the country's service. At about this time the group moved from its house on Mount Pleasant into rooms on the top floor of North College.

It has been a decade that the fraternity has occupied its present quarters at 77 Pleasant street. During these ten years, growth has been gradual but continuous, with capacity membership being reached during the last few years.

ALPHA EPSILON PI

Phi Chapter

Founded at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, 1916
National Organization founded at New York University, 1913
 Colors: Blue and Gold

The history of the Phi Chapter of Alpha Epsilon Pi had its beginning in the fall of 1916 when four men founded the U. E. O. (Unus et Omnibus). For the following few years, there was but little increase in membership.

In 1920, the organization came to occupy a place among the other college organizations. On March 1, the members changed the name of the club to Delta Phi Alpha. In this year, too, the members filed a petition for recognition by the Student Life Committee; but it was rejected. In 1921, however, the fraternity was granted official recognition, and not long after Delta Phi Alpha joined the Interfraternity Council.

On November 16, 1929, negotiations were begun with the national fraternity, Alpha Epsilon Pi. In June of 1930, Delta Phi Alpha petitioned this national group for membership.

In 1930, also, another big change occurred in the affairs of the fraternity. Previous to June of that year, the members of the group centered their activities in rooms in South College. Remodeling of South College into a freshman dormitory necessitated vacating the building. A house on Pleasant street was rented and was occupied until the fraternity's removal to 1 Cosby avenue.

With the growth of the organization, the matter of becoming a member of a national fraternity was again brought up; and in 1933 the Student Life Committee granted the fraternity permission to become Phi Chapter of Alpha Epsilon Pi. On December 24, 1933, Delta Phi Alpha was officially inducted as a member of this national fraternity.

PHI LAMBDA TAU

Founded at the Massachusetts State College, February 14, 1934

The history of Phi Lambda Tau is very similar to the history of any other fraternity on the campus. The organization grew up out of the desire of a number of students with similar ideals to associate with one another. Because of the marked increase in the number of Jewish students enrolled in the college, this group saw the possibility of establishing a second Jewish fraternity with its own ideals. Accordingly, the group petitioned the administration for recognition as a fraternity, and the petition was granted on February 14, 1934. Shortly after recognition the fraternity joined the Interfraternity Council. Temporary quarters were established and meetings were held in the room of one of its members. Not until September, 1935, was a satisfactory home obtained for the chapter. The fraternity has thirty-seven active members and pledges on its rolls, and feels itself firmly established in campus affairs.

The preamble of the petition states the fraternity ideals: "to promote a love for higher learning and close fellowship; to cultivate a spirit of unselfish fellowship, one unto another; to exert throughout life an influence tending to more manly character, higher idealism and tolerance of mind and spirit inspired of universal brotherhood; and to instill in the hearts of its members love for and loyalty to Alma Mater and its ideals."

The Intersorority Council consists of two representatives from each of the sororities on the campus. Its function is similar to that of the Interfraternity Council in that it regulates the relations of the groups which it represents. The Council was established in 1931, and since that time it has done much toward making the sororities a significant part of the women's activities in the college.

The Council's particular concern is the providing and regulating of social, academic, and athletic functions among the chapters. It holds the Intersorority contests, and awards the Intersorority Cup each year to that house which attains the highest numbers of points by its achievements.

The Intersorority Formal, which is held in April, is looked forward to as one of the big social events of the year.

ALPHA LAMBDA MU

Alpha Chapter

Founded at the Massachusetts State College, October, 1931

Colors: Blue and Silver

Originally one of the three clubs formed by the division of the old open sorority, Delta Phi Gamma. Alpha Lambda Mu, with the recognition of the faculty, became a closed sorority on November 6, 1931. Elizabeth Reed, '32, is considered as the real organizer of the sorority and she was Alpha Lambda Mu's first president. During January, 1932, the first pledging and initiation services of the new organization were held; and in the fall of 1934 obtained a chapter house at 70 Lincoln avenue. During the past year the sorority's activities have been centered in a house on Philips street.

The members of the original club and of the present sorority have been brought together by a desire to promote friendship and loyalty, to encourage high standards of scholarship, and to aid the members in showing good sportsmanship at all times.

PHI ZETA
Alpha Chapter

Founded at the Massachusetts State College, 1932

Colors: Black and White

On February 12, 1932, Massachusetts State College saw the beginning of a new sorority on the campus with a spirit based on cooperation, friendship, and loyalty. The new sorority became popular immediately and was one of the first of the sororities to center its activities in a sorority house. In 1933, Phi Zeta house was at 70 Lincoln avenue, and the next year headquarters were moved to the new Pleasant street house.

The aim of Phi Zeta is to bring together girls of similar interests, and its members stand for the highest ideals of the college and of the sorority. Phi Zeta has been prominent in the dramatic, athletic and social affairs of the college.

LAMBDA DELTA MU

Alpha Chapter

Founded at the Massachusetts State College, October, 1931

Colors: Green and Gold

Lambda Delta Mu was one of the three original sororities founded from the old open sorority, Delta Phi Gamma. From November 13, 1930, until November 16, 1931, it existed as a club, when, with recognition from the administration, it became a closed sorority. The first initiation service for new members was held on January 25, 1932.

The Intersorority Trophy, awarded for the first time to the sorority having the greatest number of points in academics, scholarship, and athletics during the fall of 1933 and the spring of 1934, was won by Lambda Delta Mu. In May, 1935, the sorority won the trophy again.

In the fall of 1934, Lambda Delta Mu centered its activities in a chapter house at 2 Sunset court. Since then Lambda Delta Mu has held a prominent place in campus activities.

SIGMA BETA CHI

Alpha Chapter

Founded at the Massachusetts State College, October, 1931

Sigma Beta Chi was founded at Massachusetts State College in October, 1931, by the social group of the open sorority, Delta Phi Gamma. Its ideals embrace those of athletics, scholarship and friendship, while its purpose is to foster friendship among women of like ideals and interests.

In September of 1933, nineteen girls entered the house at 64 Lincoln avenue, where the activities of the sorority are centered. Since its inception, Sigma Beta Chi has added many new members to its original charter members, and has held a prominent place in undergraduate activities.

SIGMA IOTA

Alpha Chapter

Organized at Massachusetts State College, May, 1934

Colors: Blue and White

In spite of its small size, Sigma Iota has an admirable record. In one short week following its organization in 1934, it presented a fine Mother's Day program. In 1935 it placed third among the sororities for scholarship and won second place in the Intersorority Sing and Declamation Contest. With the addition of eight pledges this year, Sigma Iota looks forward to a future of greater activity thus made possible.

AIM: To uphold the ideals of honesty, refinement, and culture, and to foster the ideals of Massachusetts State College.

THE INTERSORORITY TROPHY

The Intersorority Trophy is awarded each year to that Sorority which proves itself most outstanding in academic activities, athletics and scholarship. Among the contests which furnish part of the competition for the Trophy are the Intersorority Sing, a Declamation Contest, house inspection, swimming and rifle matches. Non-sorority girls may form a group and compete for the trophy if they so desire.

The Trophy was awarded for the first time on May 12, 1934, to Lambda Delta Mu sorority. The same group won the prize again in 1935, making this year the deciding factor in the possession of the Trophy.
